versities, and two from Virginia schools, met in this city this afternoon for the purpose of holding a conference to cultivate a more cordial and friendly relationship between the athletic departments of the various schools and colleges of the two States.

As a result of the conference an association of Virginia and North Carolina colleges will likely be formed to promote the interests of straight and fair intercollegiate athletics.

A committee was elected to receive, digest and compile suggestions from the various colleges, to be embodied in a tentative constitution and set of bylaws, which shall be submitted to each college for consideration by its athletic authorities.

Another conference will be called, to which each college may send a representative authorized to act upon the suggestion of the committee and aid in the formation of an association.

The conference invites the hearty concerning of every Virginia and North Carolina college interested in intercollegiate athletics. Six colleges, unable to be represented, expressed their interest and co-operation in the movement by letter.

his speech until the boy was restored to his father.

Colonel Roosevelt opened his speech by complimenting the people on their exposition. Then he discussed "New Nationalism" and the navy.

Something to Learn.

"I have just come back from a trip on the other side of the ocean," Colonel Roosevelt continued. "Visiting as I did several different countries, there are two things that struck me. In the first place, that we have something to learn, and in the second, that we have something to learn from almost each country. We have plenty of things to learn and plenty of things which we can improve on. I have come in contact with several of them, and I am engaged by trying to improve my native country. quite a job, but we are going

I am a profound believer in peace, and I want to see a navy kept up, because I know of nothing that procures a stronger desire on the part of other people to keep peace with us. That is sound common sense. Have Big Stick Ready. "Speak softly and carry a big stick There are two sides of that. Always be cheerful. Remember it is the sign Jumpire The colophy be as formal form this afternoon to deliver the first speech of his Southern tour. He spoke on the circus grounds to which he was conveyed in a large automobile decorated with goldenrods. Accompanying him in the automobile were Representative C. B. Slemp and Judge Joseph L. Kelly. Representative Slemp introduced him, referring to him as America's most distinguished citizen.

Colonel Robesvelt advanced new ideas in his address of thirty minutes, and explained what he meant by his new phrase, "the new nationalism," by saying that it was only an efficient application of the old moralities to the new conditions. Colonel Robesvelt made a hit when he responded to a voice in the audience, "Hurrah for the man that's for the laboring man," but I am for the business man and the rich man, too. I am for the laboring man, but I am for the business man and the rich man, too. I am for the laboring man if he is straight. If he is not straight I am not for him I am for the decent man, whether he is a townsman or a countryman, whether he lieves in the North or the South, or the East or the West. I don't care what party he professes or what church he belongs to, if he is a good, straight American, who does nis work fairly and squarely, then I am for him. But I am against the crock. And if you strike a laboring man who is a creck, I am against him. And if you strike a laboring man who is a creck, I am against him. There is just this difference: People have commented upon what I have said, and said, "Mr. Roosevelt attacks always the big busiress man, the man of wealth who goes crooked." I don't do anything of the kind. I know perfectly well, as all of you know, that among your friends the line that separates neople of good conduct from people of bad conduct does not run parallel with ary line that civides men into occupations or castes."

In conclusion Colonel Roosevelt said of his visit to Bristol;
"I was more than glad to come, espe-

In conclusion Colonel Roosevelt said of his visit to Bristol:

"I was more than glad to come, especially when Mr. Slemp asked me to come, because Mr. Slemp had a claim upon me that I am more than glad to recognize, for he stood as straight as a string by me and what I said while I was President."

From hera Colonel Roosevelt went to Knoxville on a special over the Southern Railway. He stood on the tear platform as the train pulled out and waived his hat and howed in recognition of the reception given him.

SIMS IS FACING

Will Be Given Preliminary Hearing When He Leaves Hospital.

Washington, D. C., October 7.—John G. Sims, superintendent of the local branch of the Life Insurance Company of Virginia, who attempted suicide in the office of Dr. William G. Young, 1315 N Street, Northwest, last Saturday, will be arraigned in the Police, Court on a warrant charging him with embezzlement from the company as soon as his condition permits his removal from the Washington Asylum Hospital. A warrant charging him with the embezzlement of $882 was sworn out by Benjamin L. Burwell, auditor for the life insurance company, last night, and the accused man is now under arrest in the Washington Asylum Hospital.

Warrant Procured.

W. H. Jenkins, representing the company with which Sims is bonded, received last night the report of the insurance company auditors and was advised by Inspector Boardman, with whom he consulted, to procure a warrant for the accused man.

Following Inspector Boardman's suggestion, Jenkins got in touch with Auditor Burwell, and Clerk Sebring, of the Folice Court, issued a warrant.

Detectives served the writ at the Emergency Hospital, where Sims had been confined as a private patient, and a guard was placed over the accused man until this morning, when he was removed to the Washington Asylum Hospital by Detectives Howlett and Mulien. Sims refused to make any statement to the detectives, and seemed to be dazed by the suddenness of the blow.

Following his attempt at suicide Sims was removed to the Washington Asylum Hospital for observation as to his mental condition. Physicians there found nothing to indicate insanity, and the patient was transferred to the Emergency Hospital for treatment. Sims keen nothing of the investigation into his accounts until the detectives based him under arrest last night.

Shortly after midmight word was sent to Keeper Drum, in charge of the chapel dormitory in the administration building, where the convicts were confined, that a prisoner was ill.

Escaped Man Returns.

Meanwhile, one of the convicts cut the telephone wire connecting the dormitory with the warden's office. The escape would not have been known until 6 o'clock had not the negro convict returned to the nrison and told the wardens what had happened.

The alarm whistle was sounded. Warden Frost hurried to the dormitory, where Drum was found still unconscious. One of the convicts had taken $45 from Foley's pocket.

Almost the entire force of keepers was sent out in pursuit of the convicts. Instead of going to work as usual this morning the 1.716 convicts were locked in their cells.

The two keepers had charge of 195 convicts. Warden Frost was surprised that more prisoners did not seize the opportunity to escape.

All the convicts were serving terms for larceny.
